WAY CLEARED FOR TARIFF

SENATE ENDS FIGHT FOR DEBENTURE AND FLEXIBLE MEASURE

Curtis Breaks Tie To Kill Repeal Of Flexible Law

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The administration's billion-dollar tariff bill, pledged by President Hoover in his 1928 campaign, was on a clear path to final enactment today following the senate's action in releasing its conferees from further support of the debenture and repeal of the existing flexible tariff law.

Both administration leaders and spokesmen for the Democratic-in-surgent coalition expected a report from the house and senate conferees before the end of the week, eliminating the debenture and flexible repeal and compromising all other tariff differences between the two branches of congress. There will be a fight in the senate against final adoption of the conference report but it undoubtedly will be approved and the bill will likely be enacted into law.

The end of the year-long battle over debenture and flexible repeal came with dramatic suddenness. The conferees had reported a complete disagreement over these items and predicted the tariff bill itself would die unless the senate allowed them to be compromised. Two separate votes followed. On the first, the debenture was beaten, in effect, by a vote of 43 to 41. On the second, the senate's stand for repeal of the flexible law was abandoned through the aid of Vice President Curtis, who broke a 42-to-42 tie vote, to kill the repeal.

The actual vote taken merely "relieved the Republican conferees of the senate from the personal pledges" not to yield on the two disputed items. Everybody, however, knew the votes killed both items. The debenture will be abandoned entirely but there may be some modification of the president's present flexible powers, since some of the administration senators favor a change.

CITY CRITICIZED AFTER AUTO DEATH

CINCINNATI, O., May 20.—(Hamilton County's) sixty-eighth automobile fatality in 1929 today was on record with the death of David Linn, aged 75, as the result of injuries which he sustained Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding plunged over a 70-foot embankment here.

OHIO SPEED LAWS TARGET OF APPEAL

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—An allegation that the Ohio speed laws are unconstitutional today was contained in the appeal for a new trial for Kenneth Driggs, 24-year-old saxophone player, who, last week, was convicted of a manslaughter charge in connection with a fatal automobile accident here March 31.

POLICEMAN KILLED
TOLLEDO, O., May 20.—Clarence Elliott, 23, Ottawa Hills motorcycle policeman, is dead here today as the result of an accident Monday night when he was thrown from his vehicle on the Telegraph Road, Perryburg, near here.

JAPANESE NAVAL OFFICER ENDS LIFE IN PROTEST OF TREATY

LONDON, May 20.—Lieutenant Commander Yoji Kusakari, attached to the Japanese navy general staff, committed hari-kiri on the sleeping car of a train enroute to Tokyo and died in a hospital to day according to a Central News dispatch received here from Tokyo.

Strict censorship usually covers affairs such as these, but it was reported that Kusakari did not leave the customary explanatory note to indicate his reason for killing himself and it was believed that he did so in protest against the terms of the London naval treaty.

FEDERAL OFFICERS CONTINUE RAIDS AT NEW STRATTSVILLE

Trustees Of Lodges In Newark Cited In Booze Cases

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—Intent upon "drying up" central and southern Ohio, federal prohibition agents today had spread the same net which entrapped thirty-four men and women at Newark last week and ensnared four men and one woman at New Stratsville, besides causing three more arrests at Newark and the issuance of warrants against the trustees of the Eagles and Druids clubs here.

New Stratsville, which is often referred to as "the wettest spot in Ohio," was visited by the dry agents late yesterday and four men and one woman were arrested. No liquor was seized, the dry agents said, the victims being taken into custody on previous violations.

Those arrested here were Bertha Ross, 46, Frank Saulbeamer, 37, Samuel Ambrose, 35, Theodore Wilson, 39, and Fred Newman, 38. All were charged with the possession of liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

Meanwhile, the prohibition officers caused the arrest of Rufus Jones, safety director of Newark, on a charge of obstructing a federal officer. The alleged offense is said to have occurred when dry squads made raids there Friday.

Two other Newark men were also arrested as the result of the raids there last week when thirty-four persons were taken into custody. The latest victims are Clyde Woolen, 26, and Minor Johnson, 36. Federal authorities issued warrants against the trustees of the Eagles and Druids homes in Newark. Frank Carr, George Hinger, Harry Ballinger, Carlos Riley and Alfred Teuscher are said to be trustees of the Eagles Lodge. Vincent Boggs, Joseph Wieber and Harry Nicholson are the trustees of the Newark Druids.

All are to be arraigned in federal court here Thursday.

Admiral Hyo Takarabe, Japanese naval minister, was reported to have received a hari-kiri knife with a note suggesting he use it in the traditional manner because of the "disgrace" of accepting the treaty terms.

Resentment in naval circles in Japan has run high over the conclusion of the treaty which has been felt by many in Nippon as unfavorable to Japan.

CLEARING SKIES BRING RELIEF TO FLOODLANDS

Floods Recede When Rain Stops And Relief Hastened

DALLAS, Texas, May 20.—Clearing skies today brought hope of relief to hundreds of homeless lowland residents as turgid flood waters in northern and central Texas and northern Louisiana coiled their way slowly southward toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Cessation of rains over the affected areas during the past twenty-four hours brought slight recessions of flooded rivers although countless acres of fertile bottom lands remained under high waters today.

Marion County, drained by the Big Cypress, Little Cypress and Black Cypress Rivers, continued to bear the brunt of the high waters. Jefferson, county seat of Marion County, at the confluence of the Black Cypress and Little Cypress, was almost completely submerged.

Many farm families from the surrounding territory, driven from their homes by the high waters, were in the city, being cared for by relief agencies and city authorities.

The Red River, its flood crests moving through central Louisiana today, still held thousands of acres water-logged under black waters in the northeastern corner of Texas and the northwestern corner of Louisiana.

Rail and highway traffic, demoralized for forty-eight hours following the storms of last weekend, was being restored in Bowie, Harrison and Cass Counties where the Red River was on a rampage. Bridges have been rebuilt and highways repaired.

Improved conditions were also reported in central Texas where the Trinity, Brazos, Colorado and Guadalupe Rivers have cut tortuous paths over vast acres of lowlands, sending residents to higher land and causing extensive damage to property and crops.

The rivers have begun falling and in the upper regions were within their banks for the first time in nearly ten days.

A "charity kidnaper," who gave the name of "Julia Otis," has been reported speeding to California on a transcontinental train with two-year-old Mary Agnes Moroney, leaving behind her a sorrowful home in Chicago where a 17-year-old mother and a 25-year-old father are grieving for their lost baby. The mysterious "Julia Otis," a well-dressed young woman, who had befriended the destitute Moroney family after they had appealed to a newspaper for aid, disappeared with the child whom she took out to clothe. Photos show, left, Mrs. Kathryn Moroney, who is expecting a third baby, looking at the layette purchased by "Julia Otis," right, Michael Moroney, the father, examining playthings of the kidnapped child as he holds his other daughter on his arm.

Mr. Hoover and the other official observers arrived at Old Point Comfort, Va., by special train from Washington at 7:30 a. m. and immediately took off for the Salt Lake City in a number of barges. Those who accompanied the president included Secretary of the Navy Adams, Assistant Secretaries Jahncke and Ingalls, Secretaries to the President George Akerson and Walter Newton, Captain Allen Buchanan, chief naval aide, Colonel Campbell Hodges, chief military aide, and Captain Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

EXONERATE BISHOP CANNON OF CHARGES DUE TO SPECULATING

Committee Is Told Bishop
Is Sorry About
Case

DALLAS, Texas, May 20.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., stood exonerated today of charges of stock market speculation following a vote of 54 to 11 returned last night by the Episcopal committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The committee voted Bishop Cannon's exoneration only after he stated that he was "sorry he had caused the church any embarrassment."

Bishop Cannon also promised the committee that he would never again trade in margins on the stock market.

Charges of stock market gambling were brought against the bishop last week by twenty-one laymen of the church, headed by Joseph Daniels, former secretary of the committee.

The committee gave its endorsement last night to Bishop Cannon's chairmanship of the church temperance board although former Secretary of the Navy Daniels opposed it.

The temperance committee, in a report presented to the general church conference yesterday, opposed modification of the eighteenth amendment.

A white light dangled from the wind-driven balloon and Pilot Little saw the flash just in time to avert a plunge into the gas bag of the lighter-than-air craft. The plane trailing Little, which was piloted by S. A. Samson, likewise just skirted the balloon.

President Hoover Views Fleet; Navy Is Staging Immense Demonstration

Mimic Warfare To Entertain Chief Executive Of Nation

ABOARD THE U. S. S. SALT LAKE CITY, OFF THE VIRGINIA CAPES, May 20.—President Hoover took the bridge of the Salt Lake City—first of the 10,000 ton, eight-inch-gun cruisers this nation has laid down—and cruised out of Hampton Roads this morning to witness his first review of the United States fleet as commander-in-chief of the navy.

Ahead of him out on the broad Atlantic, the bulk of America's fighting ships lay waiting, ready to do him honor and demonstrate their effectiveness should ever they be called into battle.

The navy today is staging the greatest demonstration of its history. Not only will the major portions of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, fresh from their winter practice in the Caribbean, parade past the president, but in addition they will simulate actual warfare and give him all the thrills of the deadly bombing by the air force sent off the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga, and those catapulted off the major fighting vessels; the deceptive smokecreens laid down by the destroyers, and the maneuvering of the submarines and other light craft.

Mr. Hoover and the other official observers arrived at Old Point Comfort, Va., by special train from Washington at 7:30 a. m. and immediately took off for the Salt Lake City in a number of barges. Those who accompanied the president included Secretary of the Navy Adams, Assistant Secretaries Jahncke and Ingalls, Secretaries to the President George Akerson and Walter Newton, Captain Allen Buchanan, chief naval aide, Colonel Campbell Hodges, chief military aide, and Captain Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

One of the features of the day is the initial attempt, above the high seas, to dispatch an airplane from one of the aircraft carriers and hook it on the dirigible Los Angeles, the same plane later detaching itself and returning to its floating base.

The presidential party ate breakfast aboard the train. Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, met them at the Chesapeake Bay and escorted them to the small boats which carried them to the Salt Lake. Then Mr. Hoover and his guests settled down to a two-hour run out to sea for the review. The official party was made comfortable in the quarters of Captain F. L. Oliver, commanding officer.

FAKE PROHIBITION POLL MULCTS MANY

CHICAGO, May 20.—Something fresh in the way of rackets, a scheme whereby citizens were permitted to assert their prohibition views, has taken $250,000 from Chicagoans in the last few weeks, authorities estimated today as they investigated the "American Prohibition Referendum Association."

According to an estimate by the Better Business Bureau here, the association obtained 2,500,000 opinions on the prohibition issue at ten cents per opinion. Of the ten-cent fee the association received four cents and the solicitor six cents, investigation disclosed.

DISCOVERY OF SAWS HALTS JAIL BREAK

CINCINNATI, O., May 20.—The finding of five fine steel hacksaw blades in the hospital range of Hamilton County jail here today led police to take extra precaution against another attempt at a general jail delivery.

The saws were found after Fred Sperber, chief deputy sheriff, had been "tipped off" that the saws were concealed along a ledge of the hospital range.

A hasty search was made of the other cells but nothing more was found. Questioning of the eight prisoners in the range revealed no information.

As Pilot Little was leading a pair of National Air Transport planes into the home stretch of the Cleveland Airport.

A white light dangled from the wind-driven balloon and Pilot Little saw the flash just in time to avert a plunge into the gas bag of the lighter-than-air craft. The plane trailing Little, which was piloted by S. A. Samson, likewise just skirted the balloon.

Pilot Little was quite a bit irked and scared, he admitted, about the narrow escape.

LINDBERGH LEAPED INTO RENOWN THREE YEARS AGO TUESDAY

Single Flight Made
Obscure Pilot

NEW YORK, May 20.—Three years ago today Charlie Lindbergh went and did it.

Since the time the anonymous airmail flyer streaked his name across the sky from New York to Paris, he has become as well known as the White House.

The decorations which he may hand down to his grandchildren would fill a tri-motor plane.

Today, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is the first American aviator to hold the record for international air mileage, and sits and flies with the great of the world.

But in the early dawn of May 20, 1927, he was just a young blonde mail pilot tinkering over his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," at Curtiss Field.

Those careful preparations were noted but not stressed by observers. For there were famous pilots at the field waiting for the grand adventure until the bad weather slackened.

Lindbergh did not wait. He hopped off for Paris with no more noise than the hum of his motor.

No individual performance since the swimming of the Helios, out attracted such international attention. The eyes of all nations followed the air trail blazed by the lone American birdman from hour to hour.

And when Lindbergh arrived at Le Bourget Field in the shadow of the lights of Paris, the world shouted its acclaim.

Here was youth strutting its wings.

Returning to his native land, the country went Lindbergh.

The flying of the Atlantic by this slim western youth made America air-conscious. American aviation leaped forward.

And unlike many super-heroes of history, Lindbergh did not rest on his first dramatic accomplishment.

In a scarcely less striking aerial odyssey, Lindbergh flew from Washington to Mexico City in December of 1928. Later he made a good-will flight to South America.

Recently, he established a new trans-continental speed record.

In his work as technical advisor to commercial transport companies he has stimulated the practical side of aviation.

Appropriately enough, the colonel met his bride on one of his flying expeditions. In Mexico City, as the guest of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, he sat next to Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of his host, at a banquet.

"Lindy" began courting Miss Morrow in aerial fashion. He commuted by plane frequently to the Mexican capital. He took her on numerous flights. Moonlight and mountain peaks above and below them.

They were married quietly on the Morrow estate in Englewood, N. J., on May 27, 1929. May appears to be an auspicious month in the life of Lindbergh.

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—Plans to include Columbus in the $125,000,000 Great Lakes-Ohio River waterways project today had been mapped out by civic organizations which met here last night.

Henry A. Williams, president of the Great Lakes and Ohio River Waterways Association, and V. A. Talbot, secretary of the association and secretary of the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce, addressed the meeting, which was also attended by delegations from Chillicothe and Circleville.

FAMILY KIDNAPED

In the hands of kidnapers for nearly seven hours, W. L. Akers, jewelry store manager of Danville, Ill., and his wife and child, shown above, were driven to Chicago by a gang of bandits after they robbed the store of $25,000 in jewelry and $400 in cash. Akers and his family, terrorized, finally were ejected from the bandit car on the outskirts of Chicago.

PENNSYLVANIA IS CASTING VOTES IN BITTEREST PRIMARY

Political Leaders Doubtful Of Result In
Tuesday Vote

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—In a fog of uncertainty, suspicion and Republican factional bitterness Pennsylvania marched to the polls today to settle by ballots the most chaotic primary in the state's history.

More than 3,500,000 Pennsylvanians are entitled to vote. Probably 2,500,000 of them will exercise the privilege. They will decide whether "Uncle Joe" Grundy or James J. Davis or Francis H. Bohnen for the Republican senatorial nomination; and whether Gifford Pinchot or Francis Shunk Brown or Thomas W. Phillips wins the gubernatorial nomination.

The Democrats have an unopposed state headed by Sedgwick Kistler, wealthy manufacturer, for senator, and James M. Hemphill

FAMED SKI JUMPER HANGED FOR MURDER

SYDNEY, N. S., May 20.—Calmly and almost different to his late, Ingvald "Bing" Anderson, champion ski jumper, was hanged here early today. He was convicted of the murder of a Sydney hotel clerk.

The trap was sprung at twelve minutes after one o'clock.

Shortly before his death the New Hampshire athlete joked and laughed and sang songs of his childhood.

"How are all the boys back in Berlin?" he asked Alfred Halvorsen, secretary of the Nansen Ski Club of Berlin, New Hampshire, who visited Anderson in his cell last night. He also asked as to his mother's health.

WOMAN'S DEATH IS CALLED SUICIDE

CLEVELAND, May 20.—Death of a woman, believed to be Miss Marion F. Daly, 35, a trained nurse formerly of New York, whose scantily clad body was found in Lake Erie off Lakewood, today was pronounced a suicide by Coroner A. J. Pearse.

Authorities, meantime, were seeking a man, known only as "Art," who lives at 205 Lisbon St., Buffalo. Through him police hope to unravel details of the woman's past and to shed light on the mystery of her death.

A letter, postmarked Buffalo, and signed "Art" was found in a suitcase located in a bus terminal through a baggage check discovered in the woman's purse.

HUGE BLIMP LEAVES LAND ON DANGEROUS FLIGHT OVER OCEAN

Spain Pays Tribute To Passengers As Ship
Heads West

(Copyright 1930 By I. N. S.)

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, May 20.—Bound on a commercial aerial aragony to the new world, the Graf Zeppelin pushed its silver nose out over the open sea at 9:27 a. m. today (5:27 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time.)

Not one among the nineteen passengers failed to register a thrill as the huge air liner crossed the coast of Spain and shot its bulk over the ocean expanse. The Graf left land behind at Chiphona, one minute less than an hour after the take-off from Tablada aerodrome, Seville.

The Graf rose from her mooring mast there at 8:32 a. m. (4:32 a. m. E. D. T.) and headed into the southwest bearing the world's greetings to the new.

Heavily laden with passengers and mails, the majestic airship rose easily in fair skies aided by the coolness of the morning hours—well away on the journey to South America and the United States.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran commander of the dirigible, was at the controls. He smiled at the crowds below and waved cheerily from the windows where so much of the world's surface has passed beneath his view in birdseye pageant.

The warm spirit of Spain that had paid tribute overnight to all those on board the Graf welled up in a burst of cheering as the craft's five motors began the steady drone that would continue across the stretches of the South Atlantic Ocean, to Pernambuco, Brazil.

The nose of the famous airship, conqueror of the North Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, headed southwest toward Cadiz on the second leg of her 18,000 mile flight with mail and passengers to South America, the United States and return to Germany.

Pernambuco, the next stop, was 3,500 miles away, and the Zeppelin would make the first crossing of the Equator in trans-oceanic flight by an airship.

There were four women and fifteen men on board the air liner.

Reports from the Graf's own radio transmitters and from ships sighting her at sea will be the only means of checking her progress over the many hours of cruising ahead.

After making her first stop at Pernambuco, the Graf will go to Rio De Janeiro, thence northward to Lakehurst, N. J., via Havana, Cuba.

TRAINMEN DIE IN RAIL CRASH

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 20.—The engineer and fireman of a special passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad were killed and a road foreman and ten passengers were injured, none seriously, when the locomotive and six coaches were derailed at Moccasin, fifteen miles south of here at 11:42 last night.

Samuel W. Craig, 52, of this city, the fireman, was killed instantly when the locomotive left the tracks and overturned. Ralph D. Cleaver, 49, also of Wilkes-Barre, the engineer, died enroute to Nanticoke Hospital.

J. A. Warren, of Sunbury, road foreman, was the only person injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment. He was taken to Nanticoke Hospital where his condition was reported not serious. The others injured were cut by small particles of flying glass.

The coaches, though derailed, remained upright, preventing a major disaster. The train was carrying 150 Shriners back to Wilkes-Barre from Harrisburg where they had attended temple dedication ceremonies.

FISHERMEN LOST

SANDUSKY, O., May 20.—Search was made in Lake Erie off Pelee Island today for three fishermen whose deserted speedboat was found caught and submerged in fish nets late yesterday.

It was feared that the three fishermen who set out in the craft Sunday were drowned during a lake storm.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

While the new Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is not quite completed as I write, the agricultural sections have been agreed on by the conference committee of congress. There are not likely to be any further changes, unless in the violently disputed tariff on raw sugar.

In a general way, the rates of the agricultural duties are compromises, and it follows that as a whole they satisfy nobody. The believers in the American market for American farm products do not think the new tariffs high enough to cut down imports very much. And the believers in cheap food and cheap clothing are inclined to be sore because any duties at all are imposed.

About the only thing that everybody is agreed on is that the eighteen months it has taken to construct this tariff bill is too long, and that the nation is heartily sick of the whole business.

The protest of several hundred economists against the whole tariff bill, some weeks ago, was very interesting, but by no means remarkable.

I do not think it is generally known that economists as a class—and you must realize that this includes the men who are specially trained to study and understand these things—economists as a class take no stock in the protective tariff principle.

They believe, and made clear in their written protest the other day, that the greatest prosperity for a nation results from encouraging and expanding trade with other nations, and not in putting obstacles in the way. They do not believe that the creation of an artificial level of prices, such as we have in this country, is any help in making our population prosperous.

It is quite remarkable, it seems to me, that the country has nevertheless gone along throughout its history applying the protective tariff principle and apparently "getting away with it." We have lost

A SIMPLE STEP TOWARDS HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a Daily Essential and Millions Know Its Effectiveness in Relief of Constipation

Perhaps the one simple thing you are not doing to guarantee permanent health is having sufficient roughage in your food. Absence of this roughage is the direct cause of constipation which results in so many other ills—headaches, listlessness, general depression, indigestion and, sometimes, serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. It is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily (in serious cases, with each meal) is the proper amount.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also helps you to health in other ways. It is rich in iron, practically all of which goes into the blood, bringing red, healthy color to the complexion. It helps prevent anemia. Be sure to include it in reducing diets.

Many eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with cream or milk added. It is a delicious addition to cereals, fruits and soups. In cooked foods, such as bran muffins, it is just as effective in the relief of constipation. Recommended by doctors. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ened with great respect to our trained economists, but have paid no attention whatever to what they told us to do.

In the present case, the nation is going right on with its custom. I am sure, and the tariff bill will shortly be finished up and signed by the president. It will carry a rather high level of duties on manufactures, and much the highest duties on agricultural raw materials ever imposed.

Then we will be able to sit back, and begin worrying over what is going to happen to us as the result of the new scale of duties.

Everybody will have his worries—manufacturers over higher costs for raw materials and reduced export sales; farmers over higher prices on things they buy, and smaller sales of grain and cotton abroad; and everybody over possible increases in living costs and the ill-will of foreign countries.

And yet it is by no means certain that any of these dire results will come to pass. An argument can be made against every one of them. And no doubt the sensible thing is to wait and see how the thing pans out in practice.

In the words of somebody whose name I forget, "Don't laugh, boys, it might work."

SEND PRISONERS TO DAYTON PRISON

County Commissioners have entered into an agreement, effective June 20, for the incarceration of Greene County prisoners in the Dayton Workhouse. It was disclosed Tuesday.

For the last two years prisoners from Greene County have been sentenced by Probate Judge S. C. Wright to the Cincinnati Workhouse under a contract providing for payment by this county of $1 for each day a local prisoner is held at the workhouse.

The existing agreement with the Cincinnati Workhouse may be permitted to expire on thirty days' notice.

Formerly local prisoners were sent to the Dayton Workhouse but two years ago in February this workhouse refused to accept any more prisoners from certain adjacent counties because of overcrowded conditions.

IT'S BY WESTINGHOUSE

IT'S THE First
REFRIGERATOR TO HAVE ALL
3 OF THESE REFINEMENTS...

The Result of Remarkable Engineering Improvement

Everything you ever sought, or hoped some day to find, in a refrigerator has been built into the new Westinghouse. It took 12 years to perfect this machine. Twelve years of research. Twelve years of experimentation. But now it is here... realized... ready for you. It is the one refrigerator on the market today that has all three of the refinements that every woman demands... Buffet-Top... Broom-High Legs... Temperature-Selector.

Every woman who has examined it has given it her instant approval, and been delighted with its convenience. She sees in the low, flat Buffet-Top... and so will you... that ever-so-necessary resting place for the dishes that are being taken out or put away. And in the Broom-High Legs a facility she likes in cleaning.

These refinements, and that of the robust, electrically sensitive Temperature-Selector, which permits the use of seven freezing speeds, are all due to the freezing mechanism that Westinghouse has tucked away over the space where food is kept.

The unit itself is smaller and lighter than anything that has gone before... requires less current... freezes much faster. It is hermetically sealed—compressor and oil supply—within a dust-proof and air-tight shell.

PROSECUTOR MOVES TO DISMISS ACTION AGAINST COLEMAN

On motion of Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall, who declared that even he did not place much credence in the testimony of the prosecuting witness and that he therefore could not expect a jury to believe it, the case of George Coleman, colored, 927 E. Church St., who was indicted by the May grand jury for operating an auto without the owner's consent, was dismissed Tuesday morning by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

The dismissal came at the close of introduction of all evidence, the prosecutor arising and apologizing to the jury for the time which had been wasted in hearing testimony. Coleman was accused of the theft of a sedan from a garage at the home of Wade Allen, colored, 733 E. Church St., last April 1. He testified on the witness stand that he was driving Allen's car with the owner's consent, having consented at Allen's request to drive to Dayton and purchase some whiskey for him.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST—O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—1 Cor. 15:55, 57.

THOSE WHO CAN

A general resumption of reasonable, normal spending by those in a position to indulge in it would help considerably toward early restoration of confidence and general prosperity in this country. In saying that, we are not counseling recklessness or extravagance, far from it.

Recklessness and extravagance never are good and always are foolish. But there are, in America, a considerable number of people in comfortable circumstances which resources have not actually been affected as a result of the existing period of financial stress. Their incomes continue unimpaired and there is no reason to suppose that they are going to be curtailed. Yet yielding to a purely emotional and unreasoning impulse, some of them are conducting themselves as though they were next door to the poorhouse.

That sort of thing helps nothing and it hurts quite a lot. Curtailment of normal buying affects the business of the merchants. Diminution of the business of the merchants decreases the market of the manufacturers. The decrease of the market of the manufacturers makes jobs scarce for the workers, and that brings us to the beginning of the circle again.

The situation is injurious, but it is susceptible of cure. The sooner those in a position to help end it by buying as they need and according to their real abilities, awaken to a realization of their opportunity and responsibility, the sooner it will begin to vanish.

SUBMARINE JAUNT

So many things that have seemed impossible in the way of exploration have turned out to be feasible of late, that the plan of Sir Hubert Wilkins for a submarine jaunt to the North Pole and back doesn't appear quite as desperate as it would have appeared a year or two ago. Indeed, it is quite likely that sooner or later some adventurer will duplicate in the Arctic region the feat the famous Captain Nemo performed in the non-existent ocean at the South Pole axis, and may even succeed in escaping whole from under an overturned iceberg. But whether Sir Hubert can perform any such feat in a used and not precisely up-to-date submersible of the present period is rather another question.

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

People used to fear that when everyone in the country who wanted an automobile had got one, then the business of making cars would slump. As the automobile trade has become one of the most vital industries, such a possibility, if real, might well create alarm.

But almost everyone who has owned an automobile keeps on owning one. Although 5,651,000 cars and trucks were produced last year in the United States and Canada, the replacement of worn out ones calls for building 3,390,000 new vehicles in 1930. The United States shipped 1,015,000 such vehicles to foreign lands in 1929, and will probably ship more this year. Many cars will be sold in America to people who never owned one before. It is hard to see how automobile production can fall off much.

Soon the circus under canvas will divert our minds from the one under the capitol roof.

If the Italian government believes in naval disarmament it dissembles well.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

SWEETNESS

Our government—any government—sometimes justifies itself by sentiment, by a kind of thoughtfulness and sweetness that makes a greater contribution to human happiness than some of the wisest statutes. The United States, sending several thousand gold star mothers abroad that they may see where their husbands and sons fought and died—that is sentiment. It is sweetness. It makes us forgive a hundred mistakes of democracy.

SMALL-SCALE

A certain man in public position has been described as "able, honest, small-scale." If that's the case he won't do. We have a right to expect every man in public life to be honest. We have a right to expect him to be able. But if he is both of these and yet can not think in big terms, deal with big figures, grasp the significance of a new and amazing word, he won't do. He is not fit for service in these difficult days. No matter what a man's other qualifications, if he is small-scale the world cannot bother with him. He will do for some little jobs that have to be done and his service will be appreciated. But he can't go far. And if we send him far we shall be sorry.

COURAGE IN CONGRESSMEN

Congressmen who lay aside their convictions, if any, and switch their votes to try and please what they guess to be the majority of their constituency, in the end show themselves up as weak. They are too small-scale for their jobs. Thoughtful voters should send to Congress the most able men they can find, men with convictions and courage. These men should act in Congress not in an effort to guess the wishes of their party members back home, but in accordance with the dictates of their consciences and their best judgment. They should make their position freely and fully known before election—during the campaign. If they have reason to change their minds about issues and do so honestly and on conviction, that is creditable. No one wants a congressman so narrow that even light can't penetrate him. And no one wants one who has no convictions. As far as guessing what the people want, he'll never guess right.

A CHILD

"He who helps a child," said Phillips Brooks, "helps humanity with an immediateness which no other help given to human creature in any other state of human life can possibly give again."

The middle aged are pretty much a total loss, not in ability of possibility of material achievement, but in the likelihood that they will greatly change their habits and their character. Character is formed early, and it cannot be taken down and put up again in a hurry.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

How many automobiles are there in the United States? According to the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, there were 24,493,124 cars registered in the year 1928. This figure included 21,379,125 passenger autos, taxis and buses, and 3,113,999 motor trucks and road tractors. There is estimated to be one car for every five persons in the United States.

Little Bermuda

How large is Bermuda? Bermuda has an area of 19 square miles and a population estimated in 1927 at 30,814.

Emerald for May

What is the birth stone for the month of May? The emerald is the birth stone for this month.

Veterans' Compensation

How many veterans receive aid from the U. S. veterans' bureau? The number of veterans now receiving compensations is 266,498, and the number of deceased veterans whose beneficiaries are receiving compensation is 88,529. Monthly disbursements approximate $16,000,000.

Antique Furniture

What age must furniture be to be called antique? The most general definition of antique furniture is any furniture that is at least 100 years old and 90 per cent original.

Byrd Expedition

Please give me some idea of the amount of money spent on outfitting the Byrd expedition. It is estimated that more than a million dollars was spent in outfitting the Byrd expedition. It had four ships to carry all its equipment and was, without doubt, the most elaborately equipped expedition for polar research.

England's Laureate

When did Tennyson become poet laureate of England? Tennyson was appointed poet laureate of England after the death of Wordsworth in 1850.

What Is Treason

What is treason to the United States? Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them, or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort, is guilty of treason. The penalty upon conviction is not less than five years' imprisonment, fine of not less than $10,000, or death.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK. — "Beef-steak" Charley has moved, and the old guard of chop house hounds has lost its last frontier "Beefsteak Charley," on 50th, just off Broadway, for more than two decades, has been an institution. You could eat there in quiet—no music, no nonsense—just good food, steeplechase pictures by "Coke" and County Antrim waiters.

Once "Charley" in a mad moment introduced a Hawaiian orchestra. "Old Johnny" Callahan, the jockey, led the rush for the door.

Now, "Charley" has got Ritz and moved into the Plymouth Hotel. The boys sent him a petition asking that he please take off his high hat and go back to the old brown derby.

OLD STUFF

That word "racket" applied to certain unsavory business practices by Broadway gents is supposedly new, but it isn't. It has been good slang since the early 1900s, and in a book printed in 1812 I came across the word to describe a fraud. Chaucer also used it as "racket" applied to a game of dice. Will Shakespeare jugged it to disorderly conduct, and McCauley wrote that he had been "racketing" lately, having dined twice with Rogers and once with Grant. A gay, noisy person was described in 1661 as a "racketeer."

For centuries it seems to have meant the same as it does today—something off color.

FOUND

Sometime ago, Evelyn Nesbit dropped from sight, and Broadway has been wondering. Now she has been located in Cristobal, Panama, working in a cabaret, according to a letter from the Canal Zone. The letter said she was first working at Kelly's Ritz in Panama, but did not make a hit with the natives who knew nothing of her tragic and romantic past.

The tourists, however, gape and buy.

NOT FOR SALE

It wouldn't have been so bad had she fallen from an airplane, but Thyrza Samter Winslow, who wrote "Shoe Business" among other entertaining things, took a header from a bicycle and is laid up with a broken toe. Now she's finding it hard to explain to her friends that the lure of the open road, and the urge to renew her

DOUBT GROWS AT NAVAL OBSERVATORY THAT A NEW PLANET WAS DISCOVERED; IT MAY BE ASTEROID, SAYS SCIENTISTS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Prof. James Robertson of the U. S. naval observatory has been suspicious, from the first, of the new trans-Neptunian planet—so called.

The initial edge having somewhat worn off from their enthusiasm (over the discovery of whatever it is), astronomical observers are beginning to remember how insistent the professor has been, all along, that before he would accept the thing as a sure-enough planet, its sponsors had to "show him."

The planetary folk are beginning to worry now; to have mistaken an asteroid or a comet for an adult-sized, well-regulated world, fit for recognition as an additional member in good standing of the solar system to which Earth belongs (if such an error has been made), will be bad for some scientific reputations.

On the other hand, Professor Robertson has a right to smile a scientific smile; he does not say yet that the flagstaff discovery is not a planet, but he did advise caution in proclaiming it as one, and with every fresh page of figures that he piles up, the more skeptical he becomes.

Astronomers are rather funny. One thinks of them that the layman is apt to sit in their observatories at night, sweeping the heavens through their telescopes, and basing all their conclusions, relative to what is going on throughout space, on the evidence of eyesight alone.

The fact is that the savant who attends to this part of the job simply is an observer, who doubtless knows a lot about the laws of the universe but is decidedly more interested in how they act than in what makes them act that way.

Below stairs, however, is another adept in sidereal lore, whose specialty is calculation of the reasons for all that the observer beholds—and often calculates it a generation or so before it happens; indeed, warns the observer in advance what to look for, and when the time comes there it is, maybe long after the man who predicted it is dead.

To hear the observer tell the story, it sounds as if he did all the real work, and the other only helped him out with a few figures occasionally.

To hear his colleagues, one gathers that the latter's is the only genuinely significant part of the task—and the observer merely a lookout to keep him posted as to any unusual stellar manifestations.

Professor Robertson's post is not at the end of a telescope, but at his desk, as director of the almanac office, dealing with the higher mathematics, and when these do not go high enough, inventing more.

For example, he estimated the path of the recent eclipse (in advance, of course), and although the unscientific world may not know anything about it, created a first class sensation in scientific circles, by making the most nearly accurate estimate in the whole history of solar eclipses—within 200 feet of an exact bulls-eye, or 300 feet closer than he himself had hoped for.

If it had not been a sporting record the papers would have issued extra editions.

Before his death, Professor Percival Lowell, it will be recalled, prophesied that, in due course, a new planet would be discerned, beyond Neptune, basing this judgment upon certain irregularities (known as perturbations) on the part of both Neptune and its nearest neighbor (earthwardly) Uranus, in their orbits.

An obvious moving speck (motion being one of the distinguishing characteristics of a planet—but also of an asteroid and a comet) having been sighted in the trans-Neptunian region, numerous observers proclaimed the Lowell forecast verified.

As a mathematician, Professor Robertson doubted it.

"This object," he explains, "was not found at the right time nor in the right place to fit Professor Lowell's hypothesis."

Moreover, as other mathematicians have since pointed out, there was room for a sufficient margin of error in the Lowell calculation of Neptunian and Uranian perturbations to offset the entire theory of an additional planet, so that there may not be one, although Professor Robertson inclines to believe that there is—as yet undiscovered, however.

Besides, whatever this heavenly

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

TROUBLE IN THE FULL OF THE MOON

Brown Beetle sighed, and a tear trickled from his eye.

"Dear me, what can the matter be?" thought the boy, and said aloud, most politely:

"I do hope nothing is wrong, Brown Beetle. Have you a pain or something?"

"Oh, no!" Brown Beetle shook his head and sighed more deeply than before. "If it were only a pain, I could bear it. It is memory that is troubling me now. When I think of the sad things that have happened to Brown Beetles on moonlight nights I can't keep the tears back."

Peter was curious. "What things?" he demanded, then thought of his manners. "Of course, if you'd really rather not talk about them—"

However, the last thing Brown Beetle wished was to keep quiet. Without paying much attention to Peter's interruption, he went right on:

"The full of the moon has ever been an unlucky time for our family. You see, the moon sort of goes to our heads and we don't quite know what we are doing. One night not so long ago my younger brother and I went out for a fly and everything looked so strange and yet so beautiful that brother lost his sense of direction altogether just as so many Brown Water-Beetles have done before him. Brother insisted that a certain shiny patch was the surface of the pool. I knew it wasn't. Yet, in spite of all I could see, down poor brother dropped and landed—ker plunk—not in water, but on something so hard that it knocked the breath out of him and he never rose into the air again."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Bell's Palsy
"Your father doesn't look right to me," Mrs. R. informed her stepdaughter, a graduate nurse, who had not seen him for some time. "I used to think he was good-looking, but he really looks funny now! His face is actually distorted, and he doesn't seem to notice it himself! His mouth is drawn to one side and the eye on that side doesn't seem to wink and it stares and is watery. I've asked him if he doesn't feel well, and he says never better in his life, except for a little pain and tenderness back of his ear on the funny-looking side. What do you suppose is the matter with him?"

"Good gracious! I don't know," his daughter answered. "Dad is pretty well along in years—64—but has always been perfectly healthy. We must have him see a doctor right away. Looks to me as though there were some sort of paralysis. He has not given evidence of a stroke has he?"

"No, he's apparently been all right. He did have a cold a little while ago, but he's never been unconscious or felt really ill. Anyway, we'll call the family physician."

What Mr. R. was suffering from was the disease known as Bell's palsy, which is a paralysis of the facial nerve (which leaves the brain through a little canal in the inner ear, and after this divides to send branches to different parts of the face) and is due to some sort of injury. For instance, instrumental delivery babies occasionally have the face nerve injured. Injury to the nerve may be due to extension of inflammation from the throat, or decayed teeth, from exposure to a cold or sleeping in a draft, or to blows, etc.

The condition usually starts with brief twitching and slight distortion of the affected side of the face, followed by loss of motion. The symptoms depend upon how high up the nerve is injured. The patient cannot whistle nor puff out the affected side of the face; the mouth is drawn to the sound side; the sense of taste may be affected; the eye on the affected side of the face cannot be closed except some times during sleep; the brow cannot be wrinkled on that side of the face; the tear glands of the eye may be affected so that the eye becomes watery. Even the ear may be affected if the lesion (injury) is high up enough. Sometimes there is stiffness and discomfort on the affected side, and a little pain in the bones around the ear.

The treatment consists of: First, measures to allay the inflammation of the nerve, and second, measures to help the paralyzed muscles retain their nutrition. The measure recommended in "Diet for Children" for allaying the inflammation is ichthyol ointment, smeared thickly over the affected side of the face (this would have to be covered with gauze). Facial massage, on the sound side as well as the affected side (once or twice daily), so the muscles won't become atrophied; electric treatments; bathing the face in alternate very hot and very cold water, etc.

There is usually recovery in from three or four weeks to a year and a half. The time is dependent upon the severity of the injury.

Tomorrow: Maintaining Normal Weight.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

BOOTS: Do you really think you could have held the boy friend by telling him you loved him? Your description of him would lead me to think that he is a good bit of a philosopher and does what he feels like doing on the spur of the moment, no matter what he has promised. Too bad you love him so dearly, because I am afraid he will not make you happy. Go out with other boys and see if you can't find one that keeps his word.

"DEAREST VIRGINIA LEE: If anyone needed help I need it now. My trouble is that about three years ago I fell in love with a young man. We married about six months after we first met. He seemed to love me until a few months after we were married. He is very rude and unkind to me.

"We have a little girl two years old and I am now expecting another in about two months. He goes out to dance and is always gone day and night. I seldom ever see him. I love him very much, but he seems to think more of any one than he does of me.

"Virginia, would you leave him or would you keep on living with him? I married before I was 14, and I am now 17. I now realize I married too young. Virginia, tell me what to do. May God bless you and your good work.

TROUBLED MOTHER:
You poor kid, you will be twice a mother before you are really a grown woman. What CAN I say to keep you babies from marrying the first boy you fall in love with?

Your husband was too young, too, of course, and is now taking his good time and leaving all the responsibilities to you. Does he support you and the baby? Have you anyone to look out for you? You left him? You shouldn't have any more babies after this one.

Unless someone—your parents, preferably—can take you in and care for you, don't leave your home, dear. Wait at least until your baby comes and is old enough so you can leave it. You both made the mistake of marrying too young, and he must help you care for your children.

Try to keep your home together and to have a father with him. He is only a boy, and although you are probably younger than he, you have to be a mother to him as well as to his babies.

Maybe he will wake up finally to what he owes to you, his wife and his little ones. If not, when you are stronger and more able to face the world, leave him and make a home for them by yourself.

JUST BLUE AND LONESOME:
I am afraid there is not much chance for happiness for you with the man you love so much. You are unfortunate in your affairs with men. A quick-tempered man who lies to you about his dates with other girls while he is supposed to be in love with you, does not, in my estimation, constitute a good prospect for a mate. Sorry you care so much, but even though a break with him now will cause you great unhappiness, won't you escape all greater misery later?

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

EXERCISE NECK

Have you ever watched children at play and noticed with what ease they turn their flexible, pliant neck muscles? And have you ever stopped to consider how infrequently you employ these same muscles?

The average housewife stretches her neck muscles only when she hangs curtains or washes woodwork, or dusts the walls. After this exercise her back muscles are exhausted, her neck and arm muscles ache.

The average typist, stenographer or clerk sits all day with her head bent over her work, and if one of her boy-friends should ask her to look at the moon, she'd get a cramp in her neck.

Small wonder that necks and chins are such a problem! The moment a beauty specialist begins to preach exercise, the reaction of the client is disinterested. The reason is that exercise heretofore has been of the enervating kind—strenuous, long and exhausting. Exercise, if it had been enjoyable, would have found more adherents.

It can and should be enjoyable to obtain the right results. And to be enjoyable it must be done slowly and employ the principle of stretching.

Make your neck exercises enjoyable. Here are a few that will be really comforting to stiff, unused neck muscles if done slowly and with stretching movement. Later, when the muscles become somewhat accustomed to the exercises, it can be done more strenuously if desired.

Lie flat on the back and bring the chin as far forward as possible. Do this five times. Turn over, and stretch the "V" backwards as far as possible for ten counts.

Sit or stand. Fold the arms behind you. Rotate the shoulders slowly.

It is strange that women, who have learned so much about the care of the body and about the value of cosmetics, still underrate the value of neck and chin exercises to retard the signs of age which so quickly develop in these portions of the body.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Gaining Weight
Brown Eyes: I think a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light lipstick would blend pleasantly with your coloring. My course in gaining weight is too long to print here. However, it is contained in detail in my booklet of "The New Face."

Liver Spots
B. L.: To eradicate brown spots, so-called "liver spots," use a solution of hyposulphite of soda and water, one part of the chemical to 3 parts of water.

Perspiration
Blondie: Continue the exercises and massage the bust with warmed cocoa butter. An excellent solution for under-arm perspiration is 3 parts distilled water added to one part aluminum chloride. Do not use this solution more than twice a week.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, for printing and mailing. Personal questions of beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

by Phil

Well, Bennie Frey, pitching pride of the Cincinnati Reds, couldn't blank the opposition all the time and as a result he lost a ball game Sunday, his first setback of the season in five starts. Bennie made the mistake of allowing Pittsburgh two runs. He should have known better. He should have known the Reds are extended to manufacture one run for him, let alone two or three. The score was 2 to 1 and it certainly was a tough break for the young rookie hurler, who previously had won four straight games, two by scores of 1 to 0 and another by a 2 to 1 score.

Spring Valley High School's classy baseball team, which was recently eliminated by St. Paris High in the second round of play in the district high school tournament at Dayton by the bare margin of 2 to 1, may derive some satisfaction from the knowledge the Champaign County entry won the tournament. Although Coach Lane's boys lost it took the best team in the district competition to beat them. That should be some consolation.

Athens, Texas "Hornets," national scholastic champions for the last two years, have been booked to meet Dayton Stivers High School basketballers when the national champs make a northern invasion next season to reassert their claim to nationwide supremacy on the hardwood. However, both teams will doubtless be considerably weaker next season due to graduation of star players and the game may not live up to advance expectations. That was the case last season or the season before when the scrappy Little Carr Creek school of Kentucky, which made such a name for itself in the national tourney, visited Dayton the next year and was swamped by Stivers. Now if the 1929-30 Athens team could have played the state champion Orange Crushers last season it would have been a game worth several times the price of admission.

We have often wondered why Xenia Central High School never has a track team. All of the other schools in the Miami Valley League have track as a part of their sport calendar and it could easily be arranged to encircle the football gridiron at Cox Athletic Field with a cinder track. Perhaps the reason is a financial one or perhaps the students are simply not interested in track. The latter reason would be difficult to understand, however. As it is there is a dearth of athletics at Central High every spring. To be sure an indifferent attempt is usually made to form tennis and golf teams but is only a half-hearted effort at best.

SCOUT COMMITTEE HEARS REPORTS AT MEETING ON MONDAY

Greene County district committee of the Boy Scouts of America held its monthly meeting at Central High School, Monday evening with Dr. Austin M. Patterson, chairman of the committee, presiding.

Reports from the various committees indicated an unusual increase in Scouting in Greene County. The committee on troop organization reported that the formation of troops in Cedarville, Jamestown and Springfield is progressing rapidly and that the necessary adult leaders have been procured for proper troop organization. Plans for the transportation of local Scouts to the Boy Scout Circus in Springfield, Friday, were made. Fred Lang was appointed chairman of the committee.

Paul McFarland was appointed chairman of the Memorial Day parade committee. All troops participating are to indicate their intentions to him as soon as possible.

S. N. McClellan will be the chairman of a committee composed of Greene County Scoutmasters, including: E. A. Roberts, E. L. Blackburn, C. S. Pramer, the Rev. Russell Burkett, Clarence F. Bay, Merrill Dawson and the Rev. A. G. Lebold, representing Troop No. 45, to sponsor a contest among troops.

A handsome silver loving cup known as the Kingsbury award will be given the organization receiving highest recognition in Scouting. Plans for the contest are now being made.

Monday's meeting indicated that Scouting in the county is steadily progressing and many adult leaders are available to further the program of the boy's organization.

BOY SCOUT Activities

Troop No. 41, Boy Scouts of America, will meet at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the Scout cabin to make final arrangements for the Scout Circus to be held in Springfield Friday night this week. It is important that the troop has a full attendance at this meeting.

GEYERS WIN SLUGFEST FROM CRITERION BY LARGEST SCORE

Playing on a diamond made soggy by an all-day rain, the heavy-hitting Geyer softball team lived up to its reputation by rolling up the largest score of the season in swamping the Criterion nine, 33 to 1, in an abbreviated National League game Monday night at Cox Athletic Field.

In what was undoubtedly the most farcical exhibition in many a moon, the Geyer team gathered a total of thirty-one hits, including six doubles, three triples and two home runs, scoring in each of the seven innings played.

To make matters worse the Criterion outfit played exceptionally loose ball in the field, being credited with eleven errors.

The Criterion boys were equally helpless at bat and were held to three hits, of which Pitcher Wells made two and his battery mate,

ANTIOCH WINS FROM WILMINGTON TEAM IN HITTING BATTLE

Antioch College's Division "A" nine and Wilmington College's team played ring-around-the-rosy in a baseball tilt on the Antioch diamond at Yellow Springs Saturday afternoon. Antioch finally emerging on the long end of a 17 to 13 score in an old-fashioned slugfest.

Wilmington used three pitchers in a vain effort to stem the rain of base hits while Pavey, star Antioch freshman right-hander, held the Quakers fairly well in check for the first six innings. He showed signs of weakening, however, and was replaced by Confer, Carey, starting hurler for Wilmington, was sent to the showers and his successor, Carpenter, soon followed him to the faucets. White finished the game on the hill.

The Antiochians pounded out sixteen hits of various dimensions, including three round trip blows, a pair of triples and a half dozen doubles.

Kentfield obtained a home run, triple and double to lead the Wilmington attack but his mates had less success at bat and were held to eight hits.

Four players shared Antioch's hitting honors. Coskery contributed two doubles and two singles and walked twice; Toomire helped out with a homer, triple, double and three walks; Captain Stanwood connected for a home run, triple and single and Confer weighed in with a circuit swing, double, single and two walks. Score by innings:

MERCHANTS TO USE DICK WELLS SUNDAY

Prevented by rainy weather from meeting the Thompson Printing Co's semi-pro baseball team in a game scheduled for last Sunday, the Xenia Merchants have re-booked this strong Dayton nine for next Sunday's matinee at Washington Park, it is announced by Manager Jesse Chambliss.

Dick Wells, clever Bowersville southpaw, who was given a trial this spring by Charlotte, N. C., but who is now back home again, will enhance the chances of the local team for extending its winning streak to three straight games. Wells hurled a few games last season for the Xenia team and invariably won a shutout victory.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 20.—Industrial stocks and specialties were again swept downward today by a wave of selling of the same variety as that which unsettled the market at yesterday's close.

Important stocks fell away 2 to 5 points, with larger gains in the high priced specialties like Auburn Auto, which dropped 11 points to 150. Westinghouse lost more than 4 points at 126 1/2; Case Threshing was down 8 points at 317; Houston Oil down 3 1/2; International Harvester down 3 at 99 1/2; United Aircraft down 3 at 69 1/2 and Vanadium Steel down 5 1/2 at 109. United States Steel was within a fraction of the year's lowest price when the stock dropped away to 166 1/2, down 1 1/2.

Though stock trading in the first two hours was in somewhat larger volume than in recent slow sessions, transactions were mostly of the professional type. Wall Street was of the opinion that the bulls were giving the bears "plenty of rope," and inviting them to sell in order to build up a short interest in the market.

Importance of Woodwork In Homes Cited

If Beauty Is Not Built in, it Can Not Be Moved in—Essential Points
Emphasized

Two qualities distinguish every beautiful home—it is skillfully conceived as a whole, as to mass and proportion; its details are properly arranged, and in themselves beautifully designed.

By details we mean the entrance, windows, molding and porch work on the outside, and the doors, trim, stairway, mantels and cabinet work on the inside. These elements being mostly of wood, they are commonly referred to as the woodwork. Beauty must begin with these, because the woodwork is the connecting link between the structure of the house itself and the interior decorations.

That is why it is so important to have good woodwork, well designed and well made. No matter what type house you have in mind building, it will pay you to give careful consideration to the woodwork before you purchase or specify any particular kind. A house with woodwork of good design is attractive even though sparingly furnished, and good furnishings appear the more beautiful if set off by a background of beautiful woodwork.

Because the woodwork is so important it behooves the home builder and those who remodel to consider from every standpoint their choice of woodwork.

Generally the cost of the woodwork represents an investment which is practically one-eighth the total cost of the house. In a $5,000 home the woodwork probably would run about $750, possibly a little less. From an investment standpoint it is easy to see why architects and builders urge clients to give particular attention to the selection of woodwork.

In selecting doors, trim, stairs and cabinet work it is well to remember that these carry out the architectural motif of your home throughout. If these units are well designed and of proper proportion they will harmonize satisfactorily, and it will then be an easy matter to choose interior furnishings to properly match the woodwork.

Doors and windows should always be of the same architectural design as the house itself. Doors of Colonial design should not be adapted to an English plan, nor should the English type door be fitted into the Colonial or Dutch Colonial. There are beautiful and appropriate designs of doors and windows for all kinds of homes.

tle of alleged "moonshine" in the wrecked machine.

POPPIES FOR SALE HERE WERE MADE BY DISABLED VETERANS

The poppies which the people of Xenia will wear on "Poppy Day," May 24, have been received by the local Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary. Miss Helen Dodds, chairman of the Auxiliary's poppy sale committee, announced today. The little red flowers, packed in neat boxes, were made in Dayton and Sandusky by disabled World War Veterans. They are paper replicas of the poppies which bloomed on the battle fields in France and Belgium during the war.

There is a story behind each of the little paper flowers. Each has been made individually by some disabled veteran and each has contributed to the welfare of some disabled man or his family. Hundreds of veterans unable to do other work have been given employment making these flowers during the winter and spring.

For each poppy made the Auxiliary pays the worker one cent. The disabled men can make about 300 a day without taxing their strength, meaning three dollars earned for the support of themselves or families. The work is given only to veterans who receive little or no government compensation. For many of the men the poppy money is the first they have been able to earn in months or years. In addition to the money earned, making the poppies has a beneficial effect on the men in the hospitals, filling the long hospital hours with pleasant employment.

Many of the poppies are made by men who are blind, partially paralyzed or otherwise disabled so badly that it would seem almost impossible for them to do any work. These men form groups of two or three, known as "poppy corporations," and work together on the same flowers, each performing the operations of which he is capable. One will start the flower and when he has done all he can, pass it on to a second who will do the work his disabilities permit and pass it on to a third man, differently disabled, to be completed.

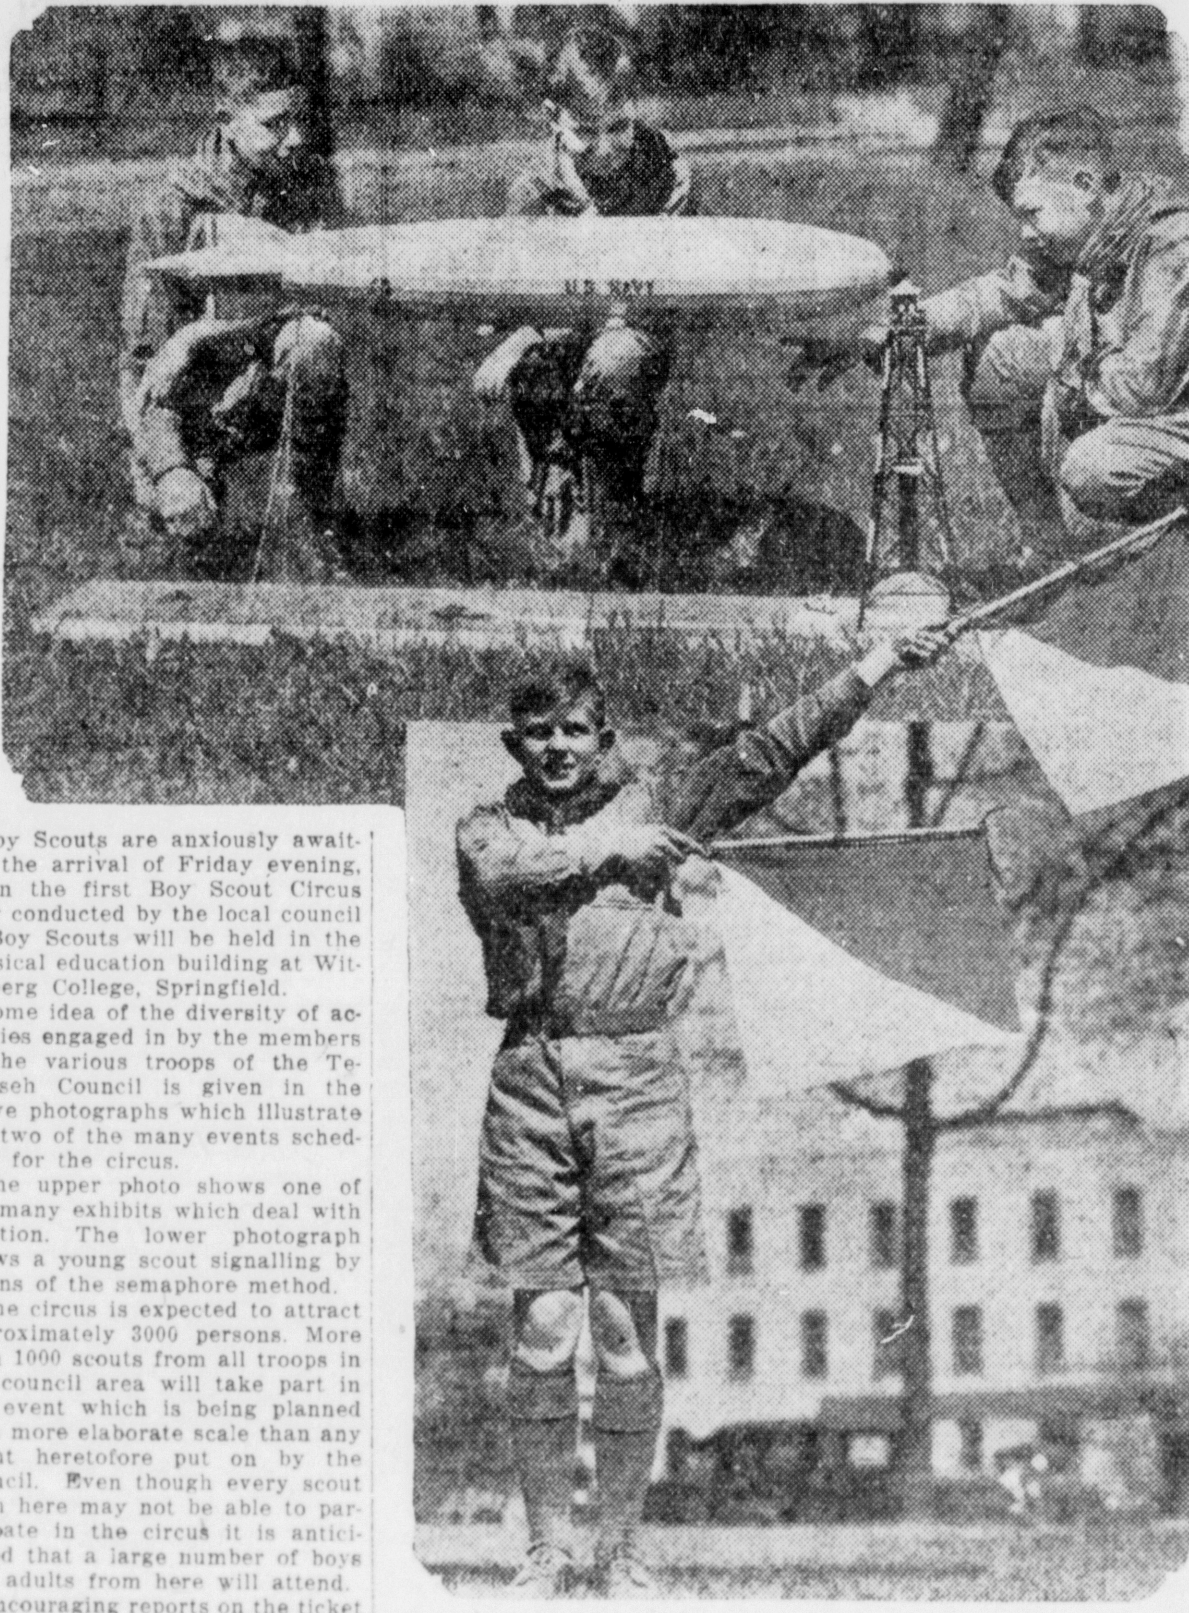

Poppies have been made under Auxiliary direction in thirty-seven government hospitals and convalescent workshops this year. More than 10,000,000 of the little flowers have been produced and the Auxiliary has paid out $100,000 in wages to the disabled workers.

Defends Bare Legs

"As long as the modern day chorus girl has one-half of one per cent of the lower half of her anatomy duly covered with clothing of some denomination she is to be regarded as being sufficiently well and properly dressed to escape the denunciation of our laws," declares Fred H. Davis, above, attorney general of Florida, in defending a burlesque show owner who had been arrested on the allegation that his showgirls were "indecently" dressed.

BOY SCOUT CIRCUS IN SPRINGFIELD FRIDAY

Boy Scouts are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Friday evening, when the first Boy Scout Circus ever conducted by the local council of Boy Scouts will be held in the physical education building at Wittenberg College, Springfield.

Some idea of the diversity of activities engaged in by the members of the various troops of the Teumseh Council is given in the above photographs which illustrate but two of the many events scheduled for the circus.

The upper photo shows one of the many exhibits which deal with aviation. The lower photograph shows a young scout signalling by means of the semaphore method.

The circus is expected to attract approximately 3000 persons. More than 1000 scouts from all troops in the council area will take part in the event which is being planned on a more elaborate scale than any event heretofore put on by the council. Even though every scout from here may not be able to participate in the circus it is anticipated that a large number of boys and adults from here will attend.

Encouraging reports on the ticket sale are being received at Scout headquarters. The general admission to be charged for the circus is thirty-five cents. A few reserved seats are being distributed at $1 each.

In summing up the results to be expected from the Circus, Field Executive H. T. Gratz has said that it is expected to make 500 scout leaders more enthusiastic in scouting and more alert in seeing and developing character value; to make 1300 scouts more in earnest about the projects of scouting; to make many other boys anxious to become scouts and to make a large number of capable men feel their responsibility to give leadership to the boys of our community through the Boy Scout program.

APRIL ACCIDENTS COST COUNTY $732

Greene County had forty-two accidents during April according to the report of the state division of safety and hygiene.

None was fatal and none caused permanent disability but eleven resulted in seven days or more lost time, four caused seven days or less and there were twenty-seven cases which required medical attention but no lost time. During March there were fifty-nine accidents, one of them fatal, in this county.

Greene County accidents caused 293 lost time which cost workers $732.50 based on a conservatively low average wage of $2.50 per day.

CONFIRMATION IS ADMINISTERED TO LARGE CLASS HERE

The Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Albers, bishop of Cincinnati, administered the sacrament of confirmation to a class of 156 candidates from St. Brigid Church and the mission parishes of St. Augustine Church at Jamestown and Waynesville at St. Brigid Church Monday night.

Members of the confirmation class, their sponsors and relatives overflowed the church and many were unable to witness the ceremony. Children in the class were dressed for the occasion, the little girls in white costumes and wearing white veils while the boys wore white waists and ties. Of the 116 candidates from St. Brigid Church and forty from St. Augustine Church, about fifteen were adults.

The sacrament of confirmation invokes the Holy Ghost to strengthen the soul, makes the faith of the candidates more firm and to assist in withstanding temptation. Bishop Albers explained in his introductory remarks. He catechized the class and congratulated the candidates on their preparation, and then addressed them on the importance of the sacrament they were about to receive. Administering the sacrament followed, each candidate being accompanied to the communion railing by a sponsor.

The services closed with benediction with the Blessed Sacrament with Bishop Albers as celebrant, assisted by fourteen other priests, including the Rev. David Powers, pastor of St. Brigid Church and the Rev. Lawrence Molman of the St. Augustine mission. Special music was furnished by the choir, including solo numbers by Miss Eleanor McDonnell and Mrs. Henry L. Farrell.

Real Name is Helen Jurgens. Annexed her last name when she married Clark Twelveteetres, the actor. Is now divorced but is still making it expensive to keep her name in electric.

Always knew she was going to be an actress. Never doubted it even when she was studying painting at the Art Students' League.

Had never thought of a screen career until a Fox scout singled her out while she was playing on the legitimate stage and asked to take a screen test of her.

Hates to drive an automobile — a boomerang from an accident in which she was almost scarred for life. Has a Graham-Paige roadster which she drives faster than the "Stop-Go" signals in order to reach her destination as quickly as possible.

Likes to Fly. Adores aviation. Recently flew to New York from Hollywood in mail plane, spending two days in city, and flying right back again.

Pet extravagance is buying dogs. Has three wire-haired terriers in her kennels just now—"Romeo" and "Juliet" and their offspring "Catherine the Great."

Is very superstitious about a pink sport ensemble she has. Won her a large part in "Elmer Gantry" and also a picture contract. Has long outlived its usefulness but still is retained in her wardrobe. Boasts no other superstitions. Signed her Pathe contract on the 13th of the month and lived in room 1313 at the Hotel Plaza.

Studied the piano for six years but plays nothing but radio now. Tunes in on anything from Wagner to Gershwin.

Attends all the big boxing bouts held in Los Angeles. Loathes football games.

Every Building in Ohio

Property owners — individually and collectively — create the conditions which determine the cost of their fire insurance.

To establish Fire Insurance Rates for the various properties in your state in keeping with their individual conditions requires careful measurement and estimate of the fire hazards in practically every commercial building in Ohio.

The Ohio Inspection Bureau

Consider the task of surveying practically every commercial building in this state—with details of construction, occupancy, protection and exposure kept on file.

Even then you have an incomplete idea of the inspection and rating services involved in establishing fire insurance rates.

This is the job the Ohio Inspection Bureau performs with its extensive staff of trained engineers.

Engineering Standards and Laboratory Tests

Engineering standards published by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and researches and tests of the Underwriters' Laboratories pertaining to the strength and usefulness of materials and devices are available to the Ohio Inspection Bureau.

Should an owner desire to improve his property where standard conditions do not already prevail, information showing him how to do it will be supplied free of charge directly through his insurance agent or broker. Constructive work of this character results in reducing hazards.

A Free Service

The Ohio Inspection Bureau is constantly advising property owners and communities as to specifications for new buildings or changes in old ones—the installation of fire protective devices—community fire prevention programs—and all fire safety activities. All of this service is free.

Public use of these and other measures of conservation afforded by Stock Fire Insurance is a principal factor in the constant decline in the average fire insurance rate in this country for more than twenty years.

DAD'S GIRL

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Clara Dee Forester, the motherless, pampered, beautiful product of a modern boarding school life of idle extravagance, supplemented by extensive travel, scarcely knew her father, Matthew Forester, who had indulged with his immense wealth, not wisely, but too well, in his effort to provide her with the "best in life," since the death of her young mother, whom he had idolized. Forester goes to his lawyer, John Gregory, and makes a will leaving one dollar to Clara Dee Forester dies, and Gregory has just read the will to Clara Dee.

Thus Clara Dee found herself put on her own resources, like thousands of girls in offices and shops. But her father believed that his girl would measure up to his mark if she were given a chance. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

The great man had not looked very happy when he bowed his gray head in his hands, but Gregory had had to admit that his argument was pretty nearly correct. So in the end he had consented to Forester's arrangement that when he died his daughter would be placed in a position identical with that of thousands of other girls who must make their living independently and with nothing on which to begin, without sympathetic advice. He had hoped that during Clara Dee's summer at home, the father and daughter might arrive at a more sympathetic understanding, but the financial sudden death, less than a month later, had frustrated any such hopes.

After a restless night, during which she dreamed alternately of slum quarters and Tudor palaces, jewels that melted at her touch and ermine robes which shrank to infinitesimal proportions when she wrapped them about her, exerting a pressure that made her own form shivel and shrink, Clara Dee forced herself to go through the humiliating scene with the servants, and patiently repeated to them that she now had no money and could not retain them longer.

Though they finally consented to look for other positions, they failed to understand the strange situation.

That done, their "mistress-nolonger" went to her rooms and began to sort and select and pack her own bag. Her personal maid hovered about, begging to be permitted to assist her, but Clara Dee insisted that the sooner she learned to do some of the countless things which would be her inevitable tasks, the better. Marie remained with her, nevertheless, advising her selections—tutoring her in her unskilled methods of packing.

"Surely, Mademoiselle will take her orchid frock for parties? She has not worn it for years."

"Why no, Marie. I shan't have use for such a frock. I suppose I shall never go to another party."

She replied vaguely. It was so difficult to decide—to know just what she would do.

"A girl wizz beauty of Mademoiselle not go to parties?" laughed Marie. "You always be happy wherever you go and have so many invitations. Please take your orchid frock, eet ez so simple and plain; even ze friends of mine have much more fancy ones for ze parties."

"Very well," smiled Clara Dee, "at least I can look at it if I get too lonely for my old life." So Marie hung it carefully in the small wardrobe trunk with the simplest of her delicate lingerie, her plainest sport costumes, several changes of shoes, a small hat, the most essential of her toilet articles. Once Clara Dee picked up the frame containing her father's photograph, set it back uncertainly, then hastily tucked it into her bag.

From her street costumes, she selected one of most severe tailoring, drew a soft hat over the shining black hair, and allowed Marie to perform the last service of carrying her bag downstairs. From the library—she had purposely gone there to phone, as an excuse for entering the sanctuary of that inviolable room once more—she called Gregory and informed him that she was leaving.

"You need not go so soon, Clara Dee," he exclaimed with dismay. "Surely you have not had time to decide just what you will do!"

"How can I decide until I burn my bridges? And discover what kind of country lies beyond, Mr. Gregory? Yes, I'm leaving at once—don't ask me to make my decision again—I fear I could not do it twice. I'll let you know when I get established in the new country. Please don't worry about me, will you?"

"Don't forget, Clara Dee, I shall anxiously await word from you."

But as soon as they had entered the dim, high-ceilinged parlor at

She called Gregory and informed him she was leaving.

Good luck and God bless you, little girl. Don't think too hard of your father, I beg of you," was all he permitted himself to advise her, though there were many things he longed to say to comfort her.

Slowly, she placed the receiver on its hook and slowly gazed about the room, as if to fix in her mind so much beauty "that she had scarcely noticed before. At the porte cochere she found Thomas waiting with her favorite car to drive her to her destination. She had not intended to drive, but his kind thoughtfulness warmed her lonely heart, and to his respectful inquiry, "Where to, Miss Clara?" she shook her head doubtfully.

"I haven't the slightest idea, Thomas, but I must find a very cheap room somewhere."

He touched his cap from force of habit, and offered, "If I may make so bold, Miss, I know of a lady who keeps a most select place with board, and very reasonable, if you'd care to look at it. Nothing swell," he added, glancing about her present surroundings, "but clean and respectable."

"Very well, thank you, Thomas." She sat very quietly, gazing straight ahead, while the man at the wheel skillfully guided the purring car through the maze of congested traffic on the avenue. Remotely, she wondered how she had been so perfectly calm and sane about it all, since that first relieving storm of grief. Perhaps the spirit of her parents, in that long ago day when they had begun their struggle for wealth, unknown to her, now filled her heart and guided her mind, which, though filled with frivolous indifference and fed with constant overstimulation during the years since her early childhood, had still retained its inherited adaptability to the situation, its pride. Understanding and guidance could have developed a splendid character from such material.

Thomas turned the car into a side street, lined closely on both sides with old stone houses, whose only visible connection with the world were the short flights of iron steps leading from the street to their high, closed, forbidding doors. Iron railings of more or less intricate design flanked each group of steps—endless pairs of them. They drew up before one of these, and Thomas stepped out, holding the door for Clara Dee. Timidly, she descended, wondering stood waiting on the top step after he had pushed the bell. The door opened presently, and a large, kindly-faced woman looked out inquiringly. Then, recognizing Thomas, a broad smile illumined her flushed face.

"Ay, good morning to ye, Tom."

"Good morning to yourself, Mrs. Flynn. Miss Forester, here, is in need of a good, clean room, and here she'd be findin' that very same," he explained.

"Shore, and come right in," she invited, opening the door wide for them to enter, but she glanced from the slim, smartly tailored figure of the girl to the custom-built car standing at the curb, with a bewildering expression.

But as soon as they had entered the dim, high-ceilinged parlor at

Silence Is Golden Behind Prison Bars

Hoots of derision and scorn greeted the Rev. R. P. Shuer when as prisoner No. 12-51-99, he was led through the Los Angeles County Jail and placed there in a cell, to begin a 20-day term of imprisonment—and silence—for contempt of court.

But as soon as they had entered the dim, high-ceilinged parlor at the right of the long, dark hall, Clara Dee quickly effaced that puzzled look by explaining the situation, frankly. Within half an hour, after Mrs. Flynn's profuse exclamations of sympathy and astonishment, she had bidden Thomas good-bye, rented the cheapest vacant room Mrs. Flynn had—a third-floor, rear, paid the ten dollars in advance for a week's lodging and meals—and was alone. Having kindly informed her that supper was at six and that it was advisable to be on time if one were hungry, her landlady had heavily descended the stairs.

Mrs. Flynn was secretly proud of so distinguished a boarder—that story of a one-dollar legacy must certainly have been stretched. She'd take a chance on a millionaire, anyway. This might only be one of them stunts of rich people doing peculiar things in search of a thrill.

The Theater

"Du Barry," Woman of Passion," is the title of Norma Talmadge's next talking picture for United Artists. It has hitherto been identified variously as "Flame of the Flesh," and "Deception."

The film has in its cast Conrad, and Rod LaRocque thinks everybody is just simply grand. And Miss Dressler will probably walk off with the show again.

Gloria Swanson's new talking picture, "What a Widow!" long awaited, will be released July 5. It is announced. Stepping down from her dignified roles, Miss Swanson plays for laughs in this new film. Vincent Youmans composed the music which includes: "Say 'Oul, Cherie,'" "You're the One," and "Love is Like a Song."

Making "Animal Crackers," the Marx brothers new picture, is a task. The boys improvise so rapidly with wise cracks that it must be difficult for the rest of the cast to keep from laughing.

Movie stars are wondering what they are going to do about Marie Dressler the veteran character player who, being cast for a supporting role, immediately proceeds to "steal the picture" from under the very noses of the principals.

The latest seen here was her impersonation of the old soak in support of Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie." She was prominent only in the early reels and for a brief appearance later, but "Sure," says the girl friend, "I seen Garbo as Anna Christie, but, George, didja see Marie Dressler as the old soak, didja?"

And that's the way it goes. Back in the days when Marie was playing "Tillie's Punctured Romance," and was being supported by Charles Chaplin, there wasn't half the discussion of the lady's ability that there is now. Marie had a recent tilt for honors before the camera with Marie and now Lillian Gish will undergo the severe test in her first talkie picture, "One Romantic Night."

The cast for this picture includes Miss Gish, Conrad Nagel, Rod LaRocque, O. P. Heggie, who often outplays stars he supports and Marie Dressler. She does not resort to caricature in this role, doesn't do a comical fall, doesn't yawn and rumble ominously and doesn't wear anything more outlandish than a handsome evening gown. Consequently it will be Marie, the actress, rather than the female clown, who will match performances with the rest of the cast in this film. She thinks Miss Gish is a fine actress, Miss Gish thinks O. P. Heggie is a great actor, Conrad Nagel thinks Miss Gish is a supreme artist, Miss Gish thinks Mr. Nagel gives the best performance.

Charles Nell, proprietor of the Wickesham House in Jamestown, is the proud father of a winsome little daughter, who arrived Wednesday.

THREE CITY CENSUS
ENUMERATORS HAVE COMPLETED TASKS

Three of the four enumerators assigned to take the 1930 census in Xenia city have completed their tasks, a survey revealed Monday, indicating that definite figures on the population of Xenia may be issued soon from headquarters of W. H. Story, Springfield, census supervisor for this district.

Ray L. Johns, assigned to the second ward; Mrs. Miriam A. Turnbull, assigned to the third ward, and Edward Roberts, enumerator for the fourth ward, have each completed their census-taking and have submitted their reports to Supervisor Story. M. J. Bebb, enumerator for the first ward, however, is still engaged in the job of counting noses in his district.

The principal difficulty the enumerators encountered was in finding someone at home when they called, this often necessitating several calls. Every effort was made to see that no one was missed and that Xenia gets full credit for its total population. A substantial gain in population is anticipated for Xenia, but it is necessary that everyone be counted to give this city as good a record as possible.

If you were a resident of Xenia April 1 and have not been counted, fill out the coupon published in this paper and mail it to W. H. Story, census supervisor, Springfield. He will see that an enumerator calls on you so that you are properly enumerated.

DR. PATTERSON
ADDRESSES CLUB

Members of the Chemistry Club at Xenia Central High School were addressed Monday morning by Dr. Austin M. Patterson, professor of chemistry at Antioch College and newly-elected vice-president of the college, who explained the atomic structure, illustrating his points with the aid of models. He also explained the hydro-carbon series to the chemistry students. Dr. Patterson was introduced to the class by B. F. Cranor.

CHURCH OF CHRIST TO OPEN MEETINGS

A series of nightly evangelistic meetings will be inaugurated at the Opera House Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Church of Christ with the four congregations of this denomination in Greene County lending their co-operation. The meetings will begin each night, including Sundays, at 8 o'clock and the series will last until June 15.

Evangelist J. S. Raum, Cincinnati, O., will conduct the meetings and the Rev. G. T. Bateman, of Powersville, who has been a professional musician for the last ten years and is a music instructor at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary, will have charge of the music. The Rev. Mr. Bateman specializes on the sliding trombone.

POLICE VACATION
SCHEDULE IS READY

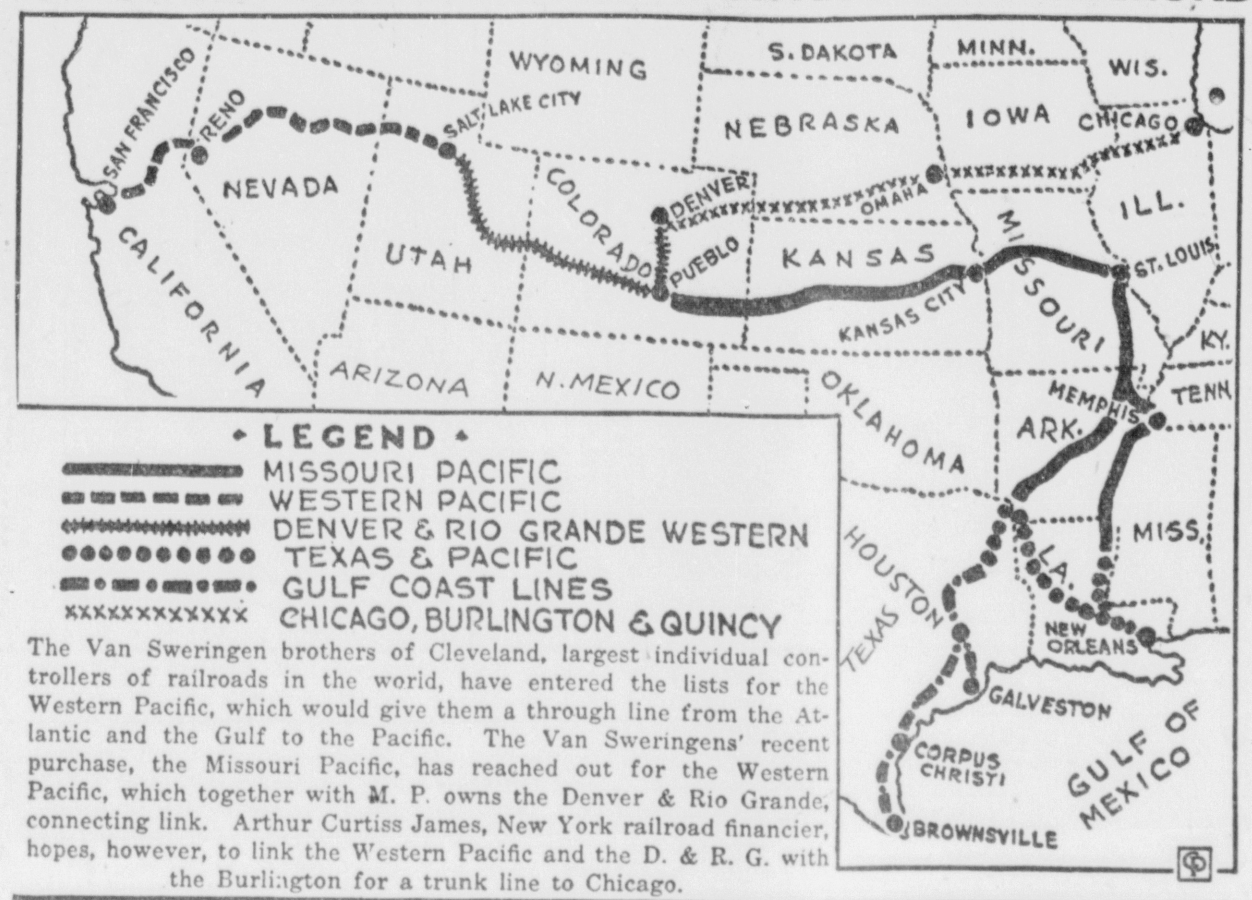

A schedule of summer vacations each of two weeks' duration for the eight members of the Xenia Police Department, beginning June 1 and ending September 30, is being announced by Police Chief O. H. Cornwell. The schedule follows:

Captain Charles Thompson, June 1-15; Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, June 16-30; Patrolman Fred Jones, July 1-15; Police Chief Cornwell, July 20 to August 3; Patrolman J. E. Craig, August 1-15; M. E. Graham, day desk sergeant, August 16-30; Patrolman George Robinson, September 1-15; H. L. Karch, night desk sergeant, September 16-30.

HI-Y. ELECTS

Elwood Shaffer, junior, was elected president of the Hi-Y organization at Xenia Central High School for next year at a meeting featured by annual election of officers Monday night. Other officers chosen are: vice-president, Merton Leinberger, junior; secretary, Chas. Adair, junior; treasurer, Robert Kinsey, junior. Five new members will be initiated into the organization at a meeting planned for Wednesday night.

VAN SWERINGENS REACH OUT FOR ANOTHER RAILROAD

The Van Sweringens brothers of Cleveland, largest individual controllers of railroads in the world, have entered the lists for the Western Pacific, which would give them a through line from the Atlantic and the Gulf to the Pacific. The Van Sweringens' recent purchase, the Missouri Pacific, has reached out for the Western Pacific, which together with M. P. owns the Denver & Rio Grande, connecting link. Arthur Curtiss James, New York railroad financier, hopes, however, to link the Western Pacific and the D. & R. G. with the Burlington for a trunk line to Chicago.
